The diagram illustrates a car crash. On the left, a car is shown from a side profile, tilted upwards as if it has rolled over. A large yellow arrow points downwards towards the car. To the right of the car, another large yellow arrow points to the right, indicating the direction of travel or impact. Further to the right, a small, crumpled metal object is shown, representing the result of the crash. To the right of the diagram is a yellow square warning sign with a black border. Inside the sign is a black circle with a white face, representing a person. A large red diagonal line crosses out the sign, indicating a prohibition or warning.
