Guide to Gaming Together for parents

There are so many benefits to gaming together as a family.
To get started, try this simple home experiment.

The LEGO Co-Gaming Experiment

– home edition

What:

A home experiment for parents and children 9-12 with three easy challenges.

Time needed:

Doing all three challenges takes 1-2 hours over a week. But the real goal is to turn gaming and talking about it into a shared routine.

What you'll gain:

Understanding of your child's gaming world.
Strong bonds and open conversations.
Confidence to support your child.

Let's go!

Challenge 01

Join your child in their gaming world

Time needed:

10-20 minutes

The challenge: Your first challenge is easy: Sit down for a few minutes while your child games and ask curious questions about it.

“Wow – what just happened?” or “How did you just do that?!”

Why:

It's a simple but big step. You've already stepped into your child's gaming world and showed that you want to explore it with curiosity.

Not sure what to play? Try LEGO® Voyagers or LEGO® Party.

Challenge 02

Switch roles with your child

Time needed:
20-40 minutes

The challenge: For your second challenge, you're going to play one of your child's favourite games – under their guidance.

Press the buttons, see what happens and remember to ask your child for tips.

Why:

As parents, we're often expected to have all the answers. By trying something new – and maybe even struggling with it – you show your child it's okay to ask for help and guidance.

Challenge 03

Quiz time!

Time needed:
20-40 minutes

The challenge: This gaming quiz comes with a small twist. You're not answering for yourself but on behalf of your child.

Have your child read the questions below and answer them as you think they would.

Questions:

Would you rather: Build and create or Compete and win?

Would your rather: Ace the game or Have fun with friends?

Would you rather: Game on your own or Game with family?

Would you rather: Explain gaming or Show gaming?

Would you rather: Decide when to pause or Be reminded?

Would you rather: Game more or Do other things?

Would you rather: Decide on gaming rules together or Follow set rules?
