Looking for life in all the right places

Chercher la vie aux bons endroits

Buscar la vida en todos los lugares adecuados

How extraordinary is life on Earth? Naturally, our current options for exploring the far-flung corners of every galaxy in the universe are... limited. So, should we still expect to find intelligent, sentient life out there? Sample analyses from recent Mars missions have shown that our red neighbor planet may once have sustained at least microbial life. As space exploration evolves over the next decades, centuries and millennia – who knows what we and our descendants will live to discover?

À quel point la vie sur Terre est-elle extraordinaire ? Évidemment, nos possibilités actuelles d'exploration des coins les plus reculés de toutes les galaxies de l'univers sont... limitées. Alors, pouvons-nous encore espérer trouver une vie intelligente et sensible ailleurs ? Des analyses d'échantillons provenant de missions récentes sur Mars ont montré que notre planète rouge voisine a pu autrefois abriter au moins une vie microbienne. Avec le développement de l'exploration spatiale au cours des prochaines décennies, des prochains siècles et des prochains millénaires, qui sait ce que nous et nos descendants découvrirons ?
