WARMTH, WITH A HINT OF MYSTERY

A flower display that leans into shadowed hues really adds depth to your home decor. It's timeless in an artful way, and with a few sprigs of light, contrasting colours, you can create a bold, dramatic effect. When we recreate organic, living plants in LEGO® Botanicals form, we always strive for an authentic look. And, if you look closer, you might be surprised to see how a creative use of elements and colours can form the unique shapes of every flower. Enjoy building as you take in the rich tones of this beautifully dark display.

DARK RED ROSE

The dark, velvety red rose evokes an intriguing sense of luxury and love. Its saturated tone symbolises a deep connection, seasoned with an air of mystery.

PURPLE ANEMONE

Also known as daughter of the wind or windflower, this is a familiar sight in temperate and subtropical areas. As a gift, it is said to help ward off evil.

PETUNIA

With roots originating in South America, petunias have charmed the world for centuries.

DARK RED DAHLIA

The dahlia carries great meaning across different cultures, from secret messages to prosperity and kindness. As the national flower of Mexico, it encourages inner strength.

BLACK TULIP

Closer to a dark purple, the black tulip is a hybrid colour cultivated over time. It inspires strength and resilience during hardship and challenges.

PIMPERNELLE

Also known as salad burnet, this perennial adds body and a touch of drama to a bouquet.

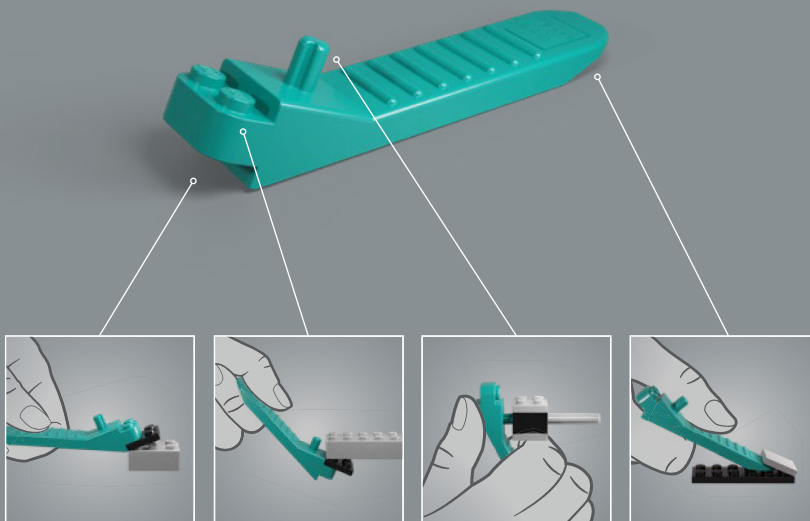

LIGHT PURPLE MISTFLOWER

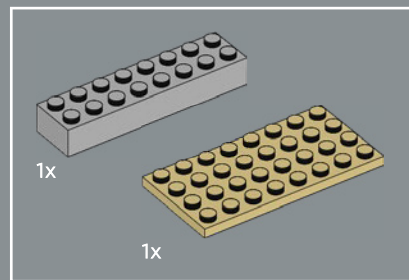

Native to the Eastern United States, it can grow up to 1.8 m/6 ft. high and, besides serving as a tasty buffet for bees and butterflies, it brings calm and tranquillity.

While the purple anemone usually prefers inland regions, this version borrows inspiration from the ocean – it's built with seashell elements.

This dahlia flower comes with extra (at least symbolic) built-in strength - look closer and you'll see it's made with LEGO® minifigure shield elements.

Petunias thrive in the sun, but to build this version, we've used parasol elements (originally created for the LEGO® Belville theme).
